LORIMER DEMANDS INVESTIGATION

JUST BEFORE CONFESSION FROM HOLTSLOW, LORIMER WAS RIGHTEOUSLY INDIGNANT

MADE PLAUSIBLE ANSWERS

Had Bitterly Scathed Newspapers, and Man Who Signed First Statement.

Washington, D. C., May 28.—A deluge of righteous indignation was poured into the ears of a respectful Senate this afternoon by Senator Lorimer of Illinois.

In his demand for a Senatorial investigation of the charges that he obtained his election to the Senate through bribery, Senator Lorimer, while prolific in vitriolic denunciation of the Republican Chicago newspaper and the men who furnished the evidence on which the Illinois bribery and perjury indictments against Illinois State solons have been obtained, did not leave the impression after his long speech that the new Illinois Senator had made a particularly strong answer to the charges against his method of getting into the United States Senate.

News Reaches Washington
Even while Senator Lorimer was speaking on the floor of the Senate news reached Washington and obtained.

ed quick circulation that a Democratic State Senator of Illinois, D. W. Holtslow, had just been indicted for perjury in denying that he had arranged for a meeting in connection with the Lorimer election. Holtslow voted for Lorimer, giving as his reason, an excuse which has become popular in Washington of late, that he wanted to embarrass the Republican party in Illinois.

The news of the latest Illinois indictments circulated in the State simultaneously with the Lorimer denial of guilt and denunciation of his accusers.

Charges Against Newspaper
Bitter attacks and sensational charges against the Chicago Tribune, which first printed the story of the alleged bribery and denunciation of Charles A. White, who signed the first statement as to bribery, and a general airing of many phases of Illinois political developments in connection with his election were feature of the speech.

Medill McCormick, editor of the Chicago Tribune, came in for a particularly bitter scathing by Senator Lorimer. McCormick was denounced as "this loathsome, detestable creature, guilty of this and other violations of decency, who should and will be in the future, as in the past, shunned and avoided by all decent people."

"GRANDFATHER CLAUSE" PETITIONS FILED

PONTOTOC COUNTY THIRD

Republicans Keeping Quiet—They May Hope to Defeat Measure at the Polls.

Okla. City, May 29.—"That the sentiment of democrats of Oklahoma is largely with us in the effort to re-mination of ignorant negroes was evidenced by the fact that it required but thirty-three days to secure the names of 42,000 democrats to our petitions asking the submission of a suffrage restriction amendment," said Fred P. Branson, chairman of the state democratic committee, Sunday, upon his return from Guthrie.

The time required for the securing of these names was a record-breaker in Oklahoma. Ten thousand dollars in cash and five months' work were required to complete the petition filed by the Sons of Washington asking a resubmission of the prohibition question. Twelve thousand dollars and six months were required to get the necessary number of names to get the petition amendment to the constitution affecting railroad construction. It required sixty days to get the names that appeared on the petition asking that the state capital be permanently located.

Leaders Here.
Democrats from all over Oklahoma swarmed into Oklahoma City Sunday and Chairman Branson, weary of a task that has required no small amount of energy, but cheerful over his remarkable accomplishments, received the plaudits and congratulations of the assembled leaders and followers in the cause.

"I am convinced the Oklahoma democrats are almost a unit for the suffrage restriction measure," continued Chairman Branson. "When other petitions were circulated they were placed before all the people regardless of politics and the task in any case was not easy. We applied largely to democrats, and while a few republicans signed the petition, the time limit is remarkable, considering that it required the name of one out of every three voting democrats in the state. We feel encouraged and look for a great victory. The democrats are with us."

Oklahoma county led the list of petitioners and Muskogee came second, the former furnishing 3,000 names and the latter about 2,700. Pontotoc was third and Bryan, Pittsburg, Carter and Atoka followed closely. Those who circulated the petitions report little democratic opposition to the measure. Even in counties of small negro population democrats were eager to sign.

Republicans are Quiet.
Arguments are to be filed with the secretary of state within forty days before the election, which doubtless will be called by the governor for August 2, the date of the primary. So far as is known the republicans have made no plans to file objections. They hope to defeat the measure at the polls.

Among the democrats who were in the city Sunday was Governor Haskell. He was accompanied by Mrs. Haskell and was returning to Guthrie from Shawnee, where he spoke Saturday night. Governor Haskell has been assigned by Chairman Branson to a series of speeches during this week. The first is to be delivered at Stillwater Tuesday afternoon, the second at Poteau Thursday night, the third at Antlers Friday morning, the fourth at Hugo Friday afternoon, and the fifth at Atoka Saturday afternoon.

SINGING CONVENTION AT GREEN HILL YESTERDAY

There was a large attendance at the singing convention held at what is generally known as Green Hill school house, five miles north of Fitzhugh, yesterday. The singing was under the leadership of Mr. George Page of Lightning Ridge. It was singing all day and dinner on the ground. The day was perfect and everybody enjoyed the occasion in the good old fashioned way.

Worthy Young Minister.

Mr. Finis L. Cargile, who was reared in Franklin county, Texas, the former home of several Ada folks, is attending the Fifth Sunday Baptist meeting. Mr. Cargile is a young Baptist minister and lately graduated from Baylor University, one of the leading Baptist schools of the nation. He is known to be a splendid young man and it is hoped will accept the pastorate of some Oklahoma church.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY AT SULPHUR SUNDAY

DRIVES PEOPLE BACK

Points Small Caliber Gun at Hotel Guests Who Rush to the Scene.

Sulphur, Okla., May 29.—Mrs. Anna East of Wynnewood lies dead in an undertaker's parlor and by her side lies H. L. Nelson, a retired business man of Apache, also dead.

At 10 o'clock this morning while all but four of the guests of the Graham Hotel, in West Sulphur, were at the Springs, two of the guests, seated on the veranda, heard a shot and a cry in the lobby.

Rushing in they were confronted at the door by Nelson, who pointed a small caliber pistol at them and ordered them away. On their return to town for officers they heard two more shots fired. Upon their return with the Sheriff Mrs. East, guest of the hotel, was found sitting erect in a rocker dead, a bullet hole through her head and one through her cheek, pieces of her diamond ring sticking to the cheek wound.

$2,500 FOR SENATOR'S VOTE

BIG CRAFT EXPOSED

A Bomb Bursts in Legislative Circles that Has Dumbfounded
a State.

"I voted for William Lorimer for United States Senator and received
therefor $2,500. I also received $700, which was given to me without explanation, with the statement that it was coming to me. I was promised $1,500 for my connection with letting of the furniture contract."—State Senator Holtzlaw.

Springfield, Ill., May 28.—Bursting
like a bomb within a few hours after
United States Senator Lorimer's
speech at Washington, State Senator
John Broderick, a leading Chicago
Democrat, was indicted on a bribery charge by the Grand Jury here to-
day. Broderick's indictment was the direct result of a confession made to the Grand Jury by State Senator D. W. Holtzlaw of Iuka, Ill., who says Broderick paid him $2,500 to vote for Lorimer for Senator. A cap-ias was at once ordered for Broderick
and a bench warrant issued for his arrest.

Says He Got $2,500.

The unexpected turn in the Lorimer scandal was an offshot to State Attorney Burke's investigation of alleged graft in a legislative furniture deal. Senator Holtzlaw had been indicted on a charge of perjury in connection with the furniture contract,
and, upon the advice of his counsel,
when offered immunity agreed to make a confession. He told the grand jury he had been paid $2,500
for his vote for Lorimer, $700 as his share of a legislative jackpot and a promise of $1,500 as his share of the statehouse furniture deal.

Senator Holtzlaw's confession regarding the furniture deal was corroborated before the grand jury by Otto Preier of Chicago, who, as agent
for the Ford-Johnson Furniture Co.,
obtained the furniture contract.

Confession Involves Others.

The two confessions regarding the furniture contract resulted in two additional indictments on a conspiracy charge. These were State Senator
S. C. Pemberton (Rep) of Oakland,
Ill., and Representative Joseph S.
Clark (Dem.) of Vandalia, Ill.

As in the case of Senator Broderick, in the Lorimer alleged bribery
matter, capias and bench warrants
were immediately issued for Senator Pemberton and Representative Clark
on the conspiracy charges in connection with the furniture contracts.

Confesor Has Immunity.

Although an indictment charging conspiracy was returned against Sennolled and immunity for Holtzlaw
hollied and immunity for Holtzlaw was ordered by Judge James A. Creighton, upon the recommendation of State's Attorney Burke.

When the indictments had been returned and the court orders entered in the two separate scandals the members of the Grand Jury adjourned
until next Tuesday.

After conferences with Attorney A.
M. Fitzgerald, his lawyer, Senator
Holtzlaw this morning communicated
with State's Attorney Burke, Worn,
haggard and driven almost to distraction during a sleepless night,
Senator Holtzlaw told the prosecutor
he was ready to confess and all liability to prosecution and punishment
was waived when immunity was offered, and later granted because Holtzlaw was a material witness.

Before going to the Grand Jury
room Holtzlaw made a preliminary
statement to State's Attorney Burke
in the presence of his attorney.

Baptist Sunday Services

Dr. Harris preached three sermons yesterday and at each service the house was filled to its available accomodation. This preacher is per-pronouncedness of his Christian sincerity and intellectual utterances,

but for the manner of his appearance
before them, always polished and gentlemanly.

The meeting will continue in progress.

To Sulphur Yesterday

A party of Ada's popular young people went to Sulphur yesterday to spend the day. To be sure they had a most enjoyable time. They were Earl Sumners, Bob Guest, Misses

CARROLL'S DEATH AN UNSOLVED MYSTERY

All His Friends Astounded; Wife Hysterical with Grief. The remains
Buried Yesterday

Why Bob Carroll of Fitzhugh who
is thought suicided Saturday, should have wanted to take his own life if he were a suicide, will always be an unsolved mystery to his most confidential friends and even to his immediate family, who would come nearer knowing the reason, if any, than anybody else.

"There is something back of this—
there is something back of this that I do not understand," said Mr. Chil-cuth of Fitzhugh. Mr. Carroll's father-in-law, who with eleven other men
had hurried to Ada on hearing of the tragedy. "If he and his wife had ever had any trouble why there might
be some reasons to think he was troubled over that," he continued. He fairly idolized his wife and children, and they did him; so there's something back of this that I don't understand. He was up here after some of his cattle that were here
and had just written me to send my son to help him; so I know he did not have any intention of killing himself a few hours ago, if he did do
such a thing. And," said he, "He,
Bob, should be in fairly good circumstances financially." And thus it is,
no one seems to have any plausible
excuse they would offer for Carroll's action.

The coroner's jury returned a verdict of death due to strychnine. It appears that he purchased some of
the deadly poison to kill wolves with
some few days previous to his death.
However some think that he had
been boozing and took the medicine
while intoxicated, others think that perhaps he got hold of some poisonous whiskey. So there is only one thing known positively, and that is no one knows exactly why Bob Carroll, a man whose family relations
were congenial whose finances were in good shape, should want to end his
own life.

His body was removed to Fitzhugh
Saturday evening, and was interred
at Roff cemetery Sunday, under the auspices of the W. O. W.

Mrs. Carroll was so complete overcome with grief that she was not able nor allowed to attend her husband's funeral.

HEAVY FIGHTING AT BLUEFIELDS

Large Body of American Troops Detailed to Guard American Consulates.

New Orleans, May 28.—That severe fighting with unusually heavy casu-
ality list on both sides marked today's events at Bluefields, is indicated
in the skeletonized cablegrams received here tonight by representatives of both the Madriz and provisional governments of Nicaragua. Neither side claims victory.

Bluefields, May 28.—This city was thrown into a panic today by the report that a general attack had been ordered by the Madriz forces.

The city is surrounded by the enemy on land and sea, 500 Madriz soldiers holding the bluff and boats being ready for the attack on Blue-
fields proper.

The chief reliance of the insurgents
is the American force of gunners.

It was learned today that General
Arias had prepared to ask permission
to bombard the city from Commander
Gilbert of the United States gunboat Peducah. The American commander
it was stated, would probably refuse,
in which event the only course of action open to the regulars would be

the general advance.

From the bluff troops could reach
the wharves within an hour, and Madriz can land troops within rifle
shot of the insurgents. Estrada said
to his gunners, after his refusal to surrender: "We can hold the positions
as long as the ammunition lasts."

Surrender of the bluff was the most
disheartening blow the insurgents
have suffered since the collapse of the advance on Managua. In a position well nigh impregnable, which 100 men could have held, Zelodon
surrendered with little opposition, while he had 200 men under him to repulse an attacking force of 500.

Most of the insurgents escaped to Bluefields by boat. A large body of American troops were detailed today
to guard the American consulate.

Ideals of Our Mothers.

As for the difference between us and
our mothers, of course we all begin by protesting that if we can ever hope to do our duty as well as they did our consciences will acquit us. Who of
us women, in our comfortable living, dare compare ourselves to our mothers? They did not talk about their "rights!" they fulfilled them—in taking care of their families. They did not talk about "reforms;" they would have thought interference in municipal questions and agitation for legislation most unbecoming and unfeminine. They had—bless their dear hearts!—agentie and ladylike irresponsibility in regard to the world lying in darkness in city halls or legislative chambers—though
they gave their pennies toward the saving of souls in dark Africa with a true, even tender emotion, to which
most of us are strangers. No; the mothers of 40 or 50 years ago had no
theories about improving the world (except the heathen) outside their own respectable doors; but they had
strength and patience and tenderness
and courage and selflessness. (That I think, would be the name of their ideal—selflessness.) Can we remember that selflessness and see no difference between it and the present feminine individualism?—Margaret Deland
in Atlantic.

Willing to Accommodate.

A timid girl, unacquainted with the city, rounded the corner of the Mint arcade and, espying a youth gazing leisurely into one of the shop windows, softly touched him on the shoulder.

The young man turned sullenly
around and inquired in a harsh voice
what she sought.

Will you kindly tell me the name
of that big building over there!" she
asked, pointing her index finger at
the public buildings.

"Why, that's City Hall, or public buildings, or whatever you want to call it," he answered.

"Well, who occupies it?" she again
inquired.

The young man was obviously growing tired and let her question go unanswered.

"May I go up to the top where the statue of the man is!" she asked in
a quivering voice.

Throwing out his chest and putting
his thumbs in the armpoles in his vest
he condescendingly replied: "You may
this time, but don't you ever ask me
again."—Philadelphia Times.

The Uplifting.

"What has become of that uplift for
the farmer?"

"It came to pass all right," replied Mr. Cornsossel. "This big boost in prices was exactly the kind of an uplift we needed."

If you are not satisfied after using
according to directions two-thirds of
and Liver Tablets, you can have your
a bottle of Chamberlain's Stomach money back. The tablets cleanse and invigorate the stomach, improve the digestion, regulate the bowels. Give them a trial and get well. Sold by all dealers.

You appreciate how uncomfortable the kitchen is these warm days? It will be worse as you advance further in the summer.
Why not use electricity and be cool? You can cook, bake, operate your sewing machine, wash and iron. In fact, there is nothing which cannot be accomplished with electricity
that is accomplished by either gas or an ordinary range. It is odorless, no heat, no smoke simply press the button and we do the rest.

His Mysterious Malady

Bobby sat up and threw off the afghan impatiently. "I feel fine now," he said. "I guess I'll go out for awhile."

His father shook his head. "Hold
on a minute," he commanded. "Where
are all those perfectly terrible sensations you had yesterday when you stayed home from school?"

"Oh, well, that was a whole day and
a night ago," protested Bobby. "A feller could get well of 'most anything in
that time."

"Especially as this is Saturday afternoon," said his father, thoughtfully.
"You considered yourself a pretty sick
boy yesterday."

"I was," said Bobby. "Gee, I felt something fierce! I never felt worse
in my life."

"Then don't you think you ought
to be very careful today?"

"If it was going to be anything it would have gone and done it by now,"
said Bobby. "Besides, I feel swell. I wouldn't 'a' laid down here, only mamma said I had to. I wish I knew what did it."

"What did you do on Thursday that
was particularly festive?"

"Well, it was like this," Bobby be-
gan. "Nellie Foster she made fudge,
and, of course, I got some of it. It
was swell, all right, only Billy didn't get a big piece and he whispered that there was too much choc'ut in it. I didn't say a word, but teacher she
heard somebody whisper and she said
for me to go out of the room and wait
downstairs for her."

"I said I didn't whisper, and she
said: 'What makes you always take
that attitude, Robert?'"

"I said I wasn't taking any attitude
—all I had was fudge."

"Then she got mad and sent me
home, because she said I was imperi-
nent."

"Out in the yard I saw Jimmy. His brother's got scarlet fever and he can't
come to school, but he waits for us fellows outside. He had an apple and he gave it to me so's I'd tell him something Susie Herrick said. I had enough of Susie Herrick when she was in my room at school, but Jimmy likes her."

"Was it a good apple?"

"No," said Bobby. "But I wouldn't let on that I was stung, so I ate it."

"Did you go home then?"

"Sure not," acknowledged Bobby.

"There wasn't any hurry. Me and Jimmy went over to the park and I got some peanuts for the squirrels. We couldn't find any squirrels, so we ate
the peanuts ourselves. I'm going to plant peanuts and see how they grow.
Billy he planted some last year and
we watched for 'em to come up and then 'long about July he remembered
they were cooked."

"I thought Billy lived in a fat."

"He does, but he borrowed our yard
to plant the peanuts. You know that big white house on the corner of aunt Mary's street?"

"Yes."

"Well, who do you s'pose is going to live there? Just Mamie Kelly!" said Bobby, triumphantly. "I 'most fell over when she told me. Gee, she'll be more conceited than ever when she's got three lilac bushes and a woodshed
in her yard."

"You were telling me what you did Thursday."

"Oh, so I was. Well, then I got some popcorn and we went home to lunch and I was awful hungry. I ate
a lot and I took three bananas to school, so's I wouldn't be hungry in the afternoon. I was going to give
one to Billy and one to Nellie Foster,
but first thing I knew I ate them all.
I was awful sorry I had when Nellie Foster gave me a big piece of choc'ut cake after school. It was some quashed from her carrying it in a bag,
but it was awful good. I got her a ice cream cone, but she didn't want it, and I had to eat 'em both myself. I never seen—saw a girl that didn't like ice cream before."

"It is rather unusual."

"She felt awful bad about it; she
was afraid I'd be mad, specially because they was nickel ones, but I didn't care much. Mamie Kelly gave me two big pickles, but the cones was gone by that time, so she didn't get any."

"But you ate the pickles?"

"Yep, I did," acknowledged Bobby, sheepishly. "But I said 'Thanks' just
as Sam came along, and she gave him
one, too. Then, of course, Sam he gave us some choc'ut creams. Say, there's a place he knows about where you can get lots of 'em for ten cents.
Gee, but they're swell!"

"Were they the best things you had
that day?"

"I should say not!" cried Bobby, with enthusiasm. "Why, I had three pieces
of strawberry shortcake for dinner."

"Well, perhaps it was the shortcake
that saved your life."

"Mamma thinks it was the medicine," said Bobby. "I certainly feel fine now. If I stay here I'll just get weaker and weaker till I can't get up,
so I'd like to go outdoors. There's a ball game over in the big lot and I'm
to pitch."

"Are you sure you ought to go?"

"Oh, yes. I can't see how it helps any to keep a feller in bed when he gets sick like that without any reason.
Anyhow, there's Billy whistling for
me."

"All right," laughed his father. "Go ahead, but be careful not to eat any
trash today."

Bobby paused a moment at the door.
"Honest, papa," he said, seriously.
"I'm awful careful what I eat, and I

DECORATION DAY

Decoration day is a day set apart for decorating the graves of soldiers and sailors who fell in the American Civil war and other wars.
Decoration Day was made so by legislative enactments of various states and the President unites with the various governors of various states in recommending the observance of this day, May 30, as Decoration Day.
The Memorial day of the South is its Decoration day.

ZION ASSOCIATION NORTH ADA BAPTIST CHURCH

Many Matters of Importance Discussed. Good Attendance. Excellent Sermons.

The Fifth Sunday Meeting of the Zion Association met with the North Ada Baptist Church Thursday May 26. Brother J. W. Bell, being absent, and who was to preach the introductory sermon, Brother W. W. Chancellor, of McAlester, preached the sermon. His theme was the "Jerico's of Life." His text was Heb. 11:30, and he cheered us with his fruitful thoughts and earnestness with which his message was delivered.

The song service, under the leadership of our proficient leader, D. Rushing was enjoyed by all present.

Assignment of the following delegates to their homes by the entertainment committee: Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Malloy, of Tupelo; also their two boys; Rev. G. J. Clark, Rev. E. J. Mathews, of Centrahoma; Rev. W. W. Chancellor, T. B. Harrell, of McAlester; Miss Perry, Rev. W. R. Edwards and Rev. W. M. Crabtree, of Savana; Rev. W. A. Hall, of Stonewall and Revs. Cargile and Payne, of Kiowa.

Friday morning, delegates met and organized by Rev. T. B. Harrell in chair. The first on program being devotional exercises by Rev. W. R. Edwards. Second, "Relation of Christians to the Church," led by W. W. Chancellor, who ably discussed the subject, followed by several short speeches. At 11 o'clock Brother C. Stubblefield preached a helpful sermon on the purposes of Christian life. At 1:30 Bro. F. L. Cargile conducted devotional services, after which Bro. W. J. Shipman, of Ada, gave a splendid talk on the cause and cure for Backsliding, after which a general discussion on Civic Righteousness was indulged in.

Saturday night, at 8 Bro. T. B. Harrell discussed purpose of a church to the edification of all present. This closed our program and our people are much uplifted by the meeting.

Brother C. R. Payne preached for us Saturday and those who heard him were delighted with his sermon.

Sunday at 10 o'clock Sunday school mass meeting, lead by C. R. Payne, followed by short addresses from the Revs. Harrell, Cargile and Howerton. 11 o'clock preaching by L. W. Wright, who ably presented the plan of salvation to the delight of our church membership. 3 p. m. Woman's meeting in which much inspiration was gathered from Miss Perry. Sunday night Rev. T. B. Harrell preached an able sermon, at which there were three saved.

STOCK SOLD

Mr. Collins Retires From Active Business to Regain Health.

J. M. Collins has sold his hardware stock on West Main to Messrs. J. G. Evins of Shawnee and J. S. Dennis from Holdenville, and the new firm will take possession as soon as an invoice can be taken. Besides being a strong company financially, both members of the new firm come to Ada recommended as men of the highest integrity and business ability. Mr. Denis will take up his residence here in the home now occupied by Mr. Collins in Sunrise, and is placing his household effects today. While he is a native of Tennessee, he came from Texas to Oklahoma several years ago and has been successfully engaged in the hardware business in Holdenville until his coming here.

Mr. Collins has been a resident of Ada about a year and a half. While here he has expressed himself as enjoying a good business. He likes the city of Ada both for her commercial advantages and the people whom he has met and for whom he will have a lasting friendship.

Mr. Collins will go home here to Kansas City for a few days and from there to either Colorado or New Mexico, and if he recuperates sufficiently will no doubt return to Ada to make his home.

Justice Court

Six cases have been dismissed today for want of prosecution. The case of Bulah Spears vs I. B. Johnson in replevy suit resulted in a hung jury Friday. The case was then set for Saturday morning, and was submitted to the court and the court was of the opinion that the plaintiff failed to make out their case and gave judgment for the defendants.

B. M. HAILE, Traffic Manager,
Purcell, Oklahoma

Granger Malton had ambitions. If it had not been so he never would have attained the eminence in the world that was his, for only dogged persistence, an iron will and desire for power would have sufficed to overcome the handicaps that had been his as a poverty-stricken boy and youth.

Now that all things material were his, he began to yearn for other joys—social supremacy, for one. Shrewd enough to realize the race was run for himself, he centered his schemes and hopes on his only son, Hadley. It made him satisfied with life and repaid him for his struggles when he looked at Hadley, who was everything his father was not—big, handsome, clever of speech and graceful of manner, so distinguished by his spirit of sheer good nature and well being that he was always a marked man when he entered a room. He drew people to him by a magnetism that was irresistible. He was pointed out by the crowd as a shining exception to the general run of extremely rich men's sons, and Granger Malton let himself dream dreams as to Hadley's future, especially concerning his marriage.

Hadley's mother, long dead, had sprung from the same class as Granger himself, and as the older man looked back through the vista of years and recalled her, colorless, faithful, commonplace and awkward, he wondered a little sadly what she would have done with the money and the granite palace and the power that would have been hers. Stern honesty told him she would have done nothing—would have sunk beneath the weight in awkward terror.

He could fancy her shrinking through the big halls of the home he and Hadley occupied. No; Mary would not have been happy; she could not have grown into the station Fate had in store for her. Moreover, she would have hampered him. He was resolved that the girl Hadley married should be one who would not hamper him; for his son was to progress even further than he had done. His wife must have been brought up in luxury from the cradle, so what would have been Hadley's mother's part would be taken as a matter of course by her. She must have beauty and youth and the sort of sweet haughtiness that comes from careful sheltering and breeding. She must be fitted by birth and bringing up to reign over the huge Malton house on Fifth Avenue and the country place at Newport.

For a year or so, Granger Malton had been calmly reviewing the younger beauties of the town trying to decide which one Hadley should marry, for he never doubted his son's willingness to please him in this point. He was too shrewd to dictate, but he knew how to manage him. Let the boy think he had all the rope he wanted and yet twist the rope in the direction he wished Hadley to go. He decided that it was time to disclose carefully his general views to his son one night as they sat over their coffee and cigars in the big library, but his speech was checked by the curious expression on the young man's face. Never had he seen him so pale, so tensely nervous, yet so fearless.

"Father," Hadley broke the silence which fell as Granger Malton's words trailed off into nothingness in his surprise, "don't talk to me of marriage—of your wishes—your views! I have something to tell you myself tonight. I was married this morning to—"

He ceased and sprang forward at his father's ghastly face, but the older man motioned him away as he slowly recovered his self-control. Yet his face was gray and aged from the moment. He stared at Hadley with an awful curiosity, as something new and strange. "Married!" he echoed at last, chokingly. "I can't believe it! You! To do a thing like that! After all my plans. You've spoiled your life! Men don't run off and marry secretly when they are proud of the girl! Who is she? Do I know her?"

"No," said the son, as white as his father. "You don't know her. But—" Granger Malton lost his head as the full realization of what this meant broke over him. He shook one trembling hand at his son. "Go!" he said hoarsely. "It might as well be now, for the break would come, sooner or later! I'll have no shop girl or chorus girl brought here to make me a laughing stock before the very servants! Is she a shop girl?"

Hadley Malton looked at the distraught old man quietly. "No," he said again, "but she earns her own living. Inez Dartmoor—"

"It's all the same," his father interrupted roughly. "Leave me! I'm done with you, Hadley! You've got ample means of your own I've settled on you—you won't starve!"

Grimly he watched the tall, straight figure vanish through the doorway. That was the last he saw of his son for many a day, and often as the scene recurred to him he remembered his sarcastic taunt: "You won't starve!"

He grew grimmer as the days and months went on bringing no word from Hadley. Seemingly he and his wife—how Granger writhed at the word—had dropped off the earth. Hadley's friends were not his, and he rarely ran across anyone who inquired for his son. A great hunger to know where the boy was and if all was well possessed him. There was nothing but bitterness in his heart when he thought of the unwelcome daughter-in-law thrust upon him so suddenly. He tried to reason out why a young man as aristocratic as Hadley should have chosen to fall in love with an ordinary girl, a girl he had to run away and marry, because he knew his father would not welcome her. He remembered dimly that Hadley had said her name was Inez, but that meant nothing. She was unknown! He could not be proud of her. His bitter sorrow over the daughter-in-law of his fancy, whom he would have showered with gifts, spoiled with his admiration and to whose pretty rule he would have bent cheerfully, was pathetic. She was an impossibility now; the brilliant future that would have been Hadley's was lost.

Life was very bitter these days for Granger Malton, and he was aging fast, growing more taciturn, more of a recluse. Even his business associates saw little of him. He roamed the great granite house sadly, fancying it as it might have been, realizing its uselessness now.

Eight months had passed and still no word from Hadley. Beneath his dull anger was growing the pitiful hopelessness of age, the one wish to see his son again, to have him near. Granger Malton had reached the point where, if he had known Hadley's whereabouts, he would have asked him to come and see him.

But he would not ask his wife, and he knew Hadley would never cross the threshold again till she came with him.

It was some days later, at the close of a conference with Simon Daly, who was interested in the same mines that Malton had interests in, and who had just come home from Europe and was bluff of speech. He slapped Granger Malton on the shoulder as he got to his feet and stood drawing on his gloves.

"Say," he cried, "why didn't you let a fellow know Hadley was married. Met 'em over in Paris, but I can't say I saw much of them, as they—Mrs. Malton, rather—was so much in demand. She's the most popular person in the American colony there, I reckon, judging from the invitations I saw piled up on her desk. Hadley always did have luck. Not one man in fifty gets the combination he did—beauty and talent and family. Why, Inez Dartmoor's people have ancestors to burn, but they didn't have any money till she developed into a genius. They say she'll be the greatest woman sculptor of her day, if she isn't now. She's the most graceful girl, and her eyes—oh, well, you know all about it. Hadley told me about his wedding—how it took a year for her to make up her mind and he didn't give her ten minutes to change it again, but whisked her off to a minister's at once. You're in luck to have such a daughter-in-law."

Granger Malton sat long after his friend left. He was thinking. He remembered now—Miss Dartmoor, whom people had talked about and raved over and so rarely could drag away from her studio. He knew nothing about art, but he did know the prices Inez Dartmoor's work had brought, for the papers always mentioned it. And he had sneeringly called her a shop girl when Hadley had said she earned her own living. Granger Malton had all the awe of genius that belongs to the uncultured man. He remembered, too, the kind of people who had sought after her. Presently he pulled over to him a cable blank which he addressed to Hadley in care of his Paris bankers. What he wrote with quick, decided fingers was brief. It read:

King Sees Doctor Daily.

In all there are 25 physicians and surgeons attached to King Edward's household. Of these, however, four are appointed in Ireland and an equal number in Scotland and would, in the event of their services being required, only be called upon to attend the king when the court happened to be in Ireland or Scotland. There are five physicians altogether specially appointed to attend King Edward, but Sir Francis Laking, one of the physicians-in-ordinary, is his majesty's most frequent medical adviser.

The king sees one of the household physicians every day, but the interview is a mere matter of form and lasts but a few minutes. The fact, however, that the interview has taken place is noted in the medical diary in charge of the physicians-in-ordinary, in which is kept a daily record of his majesty's health.

Popping Corn and a Question

"Ah!" said Mr. Luckey, advancing into the room. "A wood fire!"

"Yes," smiled Miss Dotty, looking up. "Isn't it nice?"

"Fine!" exclaimed Mr. Luckey, sitting on the edge of a chair. "Fine!"

"It always looks so—so—began Miss Dotty.

"So cheerful!" cried Mr. Luckey.

"No, I didn't mean that; but so—"

"So warm!" cried Mr. Luckey.

"No, not warm exactly, but so—"

"So homelike?" he asked.

"Yes," she softly answered, making eyes at him, and she sank on a hassock by the side of the fire, as though in any contemplation of this scene was a homelike spectacle, she was going to be in the picture.

"Have you an open fireplace in your room?" she asked, striving to present to his mind the antithesis of his present state of momentary happiness.

"No," he mourned; "no such luck."

"Poor boy!" she whispered to the fire. "Poor boy!"

"No such luck!" he repeated mournfully.

"Draw up your chair a little nearer," she kindly said to him. "There, now, isn't that comfortable?"

"Fine!" said Mr. Luckey. "Fine!"

Did you ever see anything like the way it rained today?"

She frowned slightly and was apparently about to change the subject, but thought better of it at the last moment.

"I hope it won't rain tonight," she said.

"So do I," said he.

"I always feel so sorry when you have to leave in the rain."

"So do I," said he.

She made eyes at him again, sighed at the silence more in sorrow than in anger and all at once looked brisk and excited.

"Gracious!" she cried, "I nearly forgot!"

"Forgot what?" he asked.

"I've got a corn popper and a lot of corn. Shall we make some popcorn?"

"Yes!" he cried. "That would be lots of fun."

She ran out into the kitchen and took the corn popper from a hook.

"Where's the corn, Sarah?" she asked the cook.

"I tell you the corn won't pop!" exclaimed the cook. "I told you once and I tell you again, that there corn ain't the kind to pop."

She took the corn nevertheless and went back into the parlor.

He moved over silently and she sat down beside him. It was one of those large, comfortable turkish rockers with high arms and back, just right for two, and as she leaned over to pop the corn the cosy light of the fire played on her face and showed just where her dimples were.

She shook the popper with a vigorous arm; he moved over to give her more elbow room.

"It doesn't pop," she pouted.

They watched the corn carefully, both leaning forward, with their heads very close together.

"You hold it," she said; but as he took the handle she cried, "Wait!" and seized the popper again, unconsciously placing her hand over his. "I thought I saw one pop then!" she cried.

She took the popper from him and holding it over the fire she fell to shaking it again, crying:

"Pop! Pop! Hang you, pop! Don't you see I'm waiting for you to pop? Pop! pop! pop, I tell you! I never saw anything so slow in all my life! What's the matter with you anyway? Don't you know how to pop? Good grief! Pop! pop! Isn't there any pop in you? Pop! pop! pop, I tell you! POP!"

And as she shook the handle, oh, ever so vigorously, a hand was bashfully placed over hers, an arm was timidly placed about her waist—and Mr. Luckey popped.

Sad End to Boyish Prank.

A number of April fool stunts which Harry Edwards and his younger brother, Fred, played in the attic of their home at Arlington, N. J., resulted in the death of Harry. The two brothers were going to an April fools' party, but before they left they went up to the attic of the house. Fred left his brother for a few minutes to get something downstairs. When he returned he discovered Harry hanging from a rafter. He called to him but received no answer. Around his neck was a thin leather strap, such as the boys use for their school books. Fred cut this and his brother dropped to the floor dead. The only explanation the police could get was that Harry probably wanted to fool his brother and make him believe that he had hanged himself. He stood up on a couch and may have slipped off accidentally.

Mr. Ades in Europe.

Second Assistant Secretary Ades of the state department is on his annual vacation in Europe. In company with Mr. Thacker, United States consul general at Berlin, and Mrs. Thacker, he will devote about six weeks to a bicycle tour of southern France. He expects to return to Washington about the middle of June.

LORIMER DEMANDS INVESTIGATION

JUST BEFORE CONFESSION FROM HOLTSBLAW, LORIMER WAS RIGHTEOUSLY INDIGNANT

MADE PLAUSIBLE ANSWERS

Had Bitterly Scathed Newspapers, and Man Who Signed First Statement.

Washington, D. C., May 28.—A deluge of righteous indignation was poured into the ears of a respectful Senate this afternoon by Senator Lorimer of Illinois.

In his demand for a Senatorial investigation of the charges that he obtained his election to the Senate through bribery, Senator Lorimer, while prolific in vitriolic denunciation of the Republican Chicago newspaper and the men who furnished the evidence on which the Illinois bribery and perjury indictments against Illinois State solons have been obtained, did not leave the impression after his long speech that the new Illinois Senator had made a particularly strong answer to the charges against his method of getting into the United States Senate.

News Reached Washington Even while Senator Lorimer was speaking on the floor of the Senate news reached Washington and obtained.

ed quick circulation that a Democratic State Senator of Illinois, D. W. Holtsblaw, had just been indicted for perjury in denying that he had arranged for a meeting in connection with the Lorimer election. Holtsblaw voted for Lorimer, giving as his reason, an excuse which has become popular in Washington of late, that he wanted to embarrass the Republican party in Illinois.

Charges Against Newspaper

Bitter attacks and sensational charges against the Chicago Tribune which first printed the story of the alleged bribery and denunciation of Charles A. White, who signed the first statement as to bribery, and a general airing of many phases of Illinois political developments in connection with his election were feature of the speech.

Medill McCormick editor of the Chicago Tribune came in for a particularly bitter scathing by Senator Lorimer. McCormick was denounced as this loathsome detestable creature, guilty of this and other violations of decency, who should and will be in the future, as in the past, shunned and avoided by all decent people.

Misses Ruth McClure and Dora Banard and J. A. Banard of Francis spent Sunday with Ada friends.

"GRANDFATHER CLAUSE" PETITIONS FILED

Oklahoma City, May 29.—That the sentiment of democrats of Oklahoma is largely with 'us in the effort to restrict the voting franchise in the elimination of ignorant negroes was evidenced by the fact that it required but thirty-three days to secure the names of 42,000 democrats to our petitions asking the submission of a suffrage restriction amendment.

The time required for the securing of these names was a record-breaker in Oklahoma. Ten thousand dollars in cash and five months work were required to complete the petition filed by the Sons of Washington asking a resubmission of the prohibition question. Twelve thousand dollars and six months were required to get the necessary number of names to get the petition amendment to the constitution affecting railroad construction. It required sixty days to get the names that appeared on the petition asking that the state capital be permanently located.

Leaders Here. Democrats from all over Oklahoma swarmed into Oklahoma City Sunday and Chairman Branson, weary of a task that has required no small amount of energy, but cheerful over his remarkable accomplishments, received the plaudits and congratulations of the assembled leaders and followers in the cause.

I am convinced the Oklahoma democrats are almost a unit for the suffrage restriction measure, continued Chairman Branson. When other petitions were circulated they were placed before all the people regardless of politics and the task in any case was not easy. We applied largely to democrats, and while a few republicans signed the petition, the time limit is remarkable, considering that it required the name of one out of every three voting democrats in the state. We feel encouraged and look

Points Small Caliber Gun at Hotel Guests Who Rush to the Scene.

Sulphur, Okla., May 29.—Mrs. Anna East of Wynnewood lies dead in an undertaker's parlor and by her side lies H. L. Nelson, a retired business man of Apache, also dead.

At 10 o'clock this morning while all but four of the guests of the Graham Hotel, in West Sulphur, were at the Springs, two of the guests, seated on the veranda, heard a shot and a cry in the lobby.

Rushing in they were confronted at the door by Nelson, who pointed a small caliber pistol at them and ordered them away. On their return to town for officers they heard two more shots fired. Upon their return with the Sheriff Mrs. East, guest of the hotel, was found sitting erect in a rocker dead, a bullet hole through her head and one through her cheek, pieces of her diamond ring sticking to the cheek wound.

Worthy Young Minister.

Mr. Finis L. Cargile, who was reared in Franklin county, Texas, the former home of several Ada folks, is attending the Fifth Sunday Baptist meeting. Mr. Cargile is a young Baptist minister and lately graduated from Baylor University, one of the leading Baptist schools of the nation. He is known to be a splendid young man and it is hoped will accept the pastorate of some Oklahoma church.

SINGING CONVENTION AT GREEN HILL YESTERDAY

There was a large attendance at the singing convention held at what is generally known as Green Hill school house, five miles north of Fitzhugh, yesterday. The singing was under the leadership of Mr. George Page of Lightning Ridge. It was singing all day and dinner on the ground. The day was perfect and everybody enjoyed the occasion in the good old fashioned way.

$2,500 FOR SENATOR'S VOTE

BIG GRAFT EXPOSED

A Bomb Bursts in Legislative Circles that Has Dumbfounded
a State.

therefor $2,500. I also received $700,
which was given to me without explanation, with the statement that it
was coming to me. I was promised $1,500 for my connection with let-
Senator Holtzlaw.

John Broderick, a leading Chicago
Democrat, was indicted on a bribery
charge by the Grand Jury here to-
day. Broderick's indictment was the
direct result of a confession made
to the Grand Jury by State Senator
D. W. Holtzlaw of Iuka, Ill., who says Broderick paid him $2,500 to
vote for Lorimer for Senator. A cap-
ias was at once ordered for Broderick
and a bench warrant issued for his
arrest.

Says He Got $2,500.

The unexpected turn in the Lor-
imer scandal was an offshot to State Attorney Burke's investigation of alleged graft in a legislative furniture
deal. Senator Holtzlaw had been indicted on a charge of perjury in connection with the furniture contract,
and, upon the advice of his counsel,
when offered immunity agreed to
make a confession. He told the
for his vote for Lorimer, $700 as his
share of a legislative jackpot and a promise of $1,500 as his share of the furniture deal.

Senator Holtzlaw's confession regarding the furniture deal was corroborated before the grand jury by
for the Ford-Johnson Furniture Co.,
obtained the furniture contract.

Confession Involves Others.

The two confessions regarding the
furniture contract resulted in two ad-
charge. These were State Senator
S. C. Pemberton (Rep) of Oakland,
Clark (Dem.) of Vandalia, Ill.

As in the case of Senator Broder-
ick, in the Lorimer alleged bribery
matter, capias and bench warrants
were immediately issued for Senator
Pemberton and Representative Clark
on the conspiracy charges in connection with the furniture contracts.

Confessor Has Immunity.

Although an indictment charging
conspiracy was returned against Senator Holtzlaw and immunity for Holtzlaw was ordered by Judge James A. Creighton, upon the recommendation of State's Attorney Burke.

When the indictments had been returned and the court orders entered
in the two separate scandals the
members of the Grand Jury adjourned
until next Tuesday.

After conferences with Attorney A.
M. Fitzgerald, his lawyer, Senator
with States Attorney Burke, worn,
haggard and driven almost to dis-
traction during a sleepless night.
Senator Holtzlaw told the prosecutor
he was ready to confess and all li-
ability to prosecution and punishment
was waived when immunity was offered, and later granted because
Holtzlaw was a material witness.

Before going to the Grand Jury
statement to State's Attorney Burke
in the presence of his attorney.

Baptist Sunday Services

Dr. Harris preached three sermons
yesterday and at each service the
house was filled to its available accommodation. This preacher is personally strongly attracting the people who hear him, not only for the pronouncement of his Christian sincerity and intellectual utterances,
before them, always polished and
gentlemanly.

The meeting will continue in progress.

To Sulphur Yesterday

A party of Ada's popular young people went to Sulphur yesterday to spend the day. To be sure they had a most enjoyable time. They were
Earl Summers, Bob Guest, Misses Maudena Carley and Nettie Barringer.

All His Friends Astounded; Wife Mysterious With Grief. The remains Buried Yesterday

Why Bob Carroll of Fitzhugh who
is thought suicided Saturday, should
have wanted to take his own life if
unsolved mystery to his most confidential friends and even to his immediate family, who would come nearer knowing the reason, if any, than
anybody else.

"There is something back of this—
there is something back of this that I do not understand," said Mr. Chil-cut of Fitzhugh, Mr. Carroll's father-
in-law, who with eleven other men
tragedy. "If he and his wife had
fairly idolized his wife and chil-
understand. He was up here after
some of his cattle that were here
and had just written me to send my
son to help him; so I know he did
not have any intention of killing himself a few hours ago, if he did do
such a thing. And," said he, "He,
Bob, should be in fairly good circumstances financially." And thus it is,
no one seems to have any plausible
excuse they would offer for Car-
roll's action.

The coroner's jury returned a ver-
the deadly poison to kill wolves with
some few days previous to his death.
However some think that he had
been boozing and took the medicine
while intoxicated, others think that
perhaps he got hold of some poisonous whiskey. So there is only one thing known positively, and that is
no one knows exactly why Bob Car-
roll, a man whose family relations
were congenial whose finances were
in good shape, should want to end his
own life.

His body was removed to Fitzhugh
Saturday evening, and was interred
at Roff cemetery Sunday, under the
auspices of the W. O. W.

Mrs. Carroll was so complete over-
come with grief that she was not able nor allowed to attend her husband's funeral.

Large Body of American Troops Detained to Guard American Consulates.

New Orleans, May 28.—That severe
fighting with unusually heavy casualties on both sides marked today's events at Bluefields, is indicated
in the skeletonized cablegrams received here tonight by representatives
of both the Madriz and provisional
side claims victory.

Bluefields, May 28.—This city was
thrown into a panic today by the report that a general attack had been
ordered by the Madriz forces.

The city is surrounded by the enemy on land and sea, 500 Madriz soldiers holding the bluff and boats being ready for the attack on Blue-
fields proper.

The chief reliance of the insurgents
is the American force of gunners.

It was learned today that General
Arias had prepared to ask permission
to bombard the city from Commander
Gilbert of the United States gunboat
Peducah. The American commander,
it was stated, would probably refuse,

the general advance.
From the bluff troops could reach
the wharves within an hour, and Madriz can land troops within rifle
to his gunners, after his refusal to

Surrender of the bluff was the most
disheartening blow the insurgents
have suffered since the collapse of
the advance on Managua. In a position well nigh impregnable, which 100 men could have held. Zelodon
surrendered with little opposition,
while he had 200 men under him to
repulse an attacking force of 500.

Most of the insurgents escaped to

Ideals of Our Mothers.

As for the difference between us and
our mothers, of course we all begin by
do our duty as well as they did our conscience will acquit us. Who of
us women, in our comfortable living,
dare compare ourselves to our mothers? They did not talk about their
"rights!" they fulfilled them—in taking care of their families. They did not talk about "reforms;" they would have
thought interference in municipal questions and agitation for legislation most unbecoming and unfeminine. They had—bless their dear hearts!—a gentle and ladylike irresponsibility in regard to the world lying in darkness in city halls or legislative chambers—though
they gave their pennies toward the
saying of souls in dark Africa with a
most of us are strangers. No, the
mothers of 40 or 50 years ago had no
theories about improving the world, (except the heathen) outside their own
respectable doors; but they had
and courage and selflessness. (That I think, would be the name of their
ideal—selflessness.) Can we remember that selflessness and see no difference between it and the present feminine individualism?—Margaret Deland
in Atlantic.

Willing to Accommodate.

A timid girl, unacquainted with the
city, rounded the corner of the Mint
and, spying a youth gazing
leisurely into one of the shop windows, softly touched him on the
shoulder.

The young man turned sullenly
around and inquired in a harsh voice
what she sought.

asked, pointing her index finger at
the public buildings.

"Why, that's City Hall, or public
buildings, or whatever you want to
call it," he answered.

"Well, who occupies it?" she again
inquired.

The young man was obviously
growing tired and let her question go
unanswered.

"May I go up to the top where the
a quivering voice.

his thumbs in the armpits in his vest
he condescendingly replied: "You may
this time, but don't you ever ask me

The Uplifting.

"What has become of that uplift for
the farmer?"

"It came to pass all right," replied
Mr. Cornetossel. "This big boost in prices was exactly the kind of an up-
lift we needed."

If you are not satisfied after using
according to directions two-thirds of
and Liver Tablets, you can have your bottle of Chamberlain's Stomach money back. The tablets cleanse and
invigorate the stomach, improve the
digestion, regulate the bowels. Give them a trial and get well. Sold by all dealers.

It is rather unusual.

"She felt awful bad about it; she
was afraid I'd be mad, specially because they was nickel ones, but I didn't care much. Mamie Kelly gave
me two big pickles, but the cones was
any."

"But you ate the pickles?"

"Yes, I did," acknowledged Bobby, sheepishly. "But I said 'Thanks' just
as Sam came along, and she gave him
one, too. Then, of course, Sam he gave us some choo'ut creams. Say,
there's a place he knows about where
you can get lots of 'em for ten cents.
Gee, but they're swell!"

"Were they the best things you had
that day?"

"I should say not!" cried Bobby, with
enthusiasm. "Why, I had three pieces
of strawberry shortcake for dinner."

that saved your life."

"Mamma thinks it was the medicine," said Bobby. "I certainly feel fine now. If I stay here I'll just get
weaker and weaker till I can't get up,
so I'd like to go outdoors. There's a ball game over in the big lot and I'm
to pitch."

"Are you sure you ought to go?"

any to keep a feller in bed when he
gets sick like that without any reason.
Anyhow, there's Billy whistling for
me."

"All right," laughed his father. "Go ahead, but be careful not to eat any
trash today."

Bobby paused a moment at the door.
"Honest, papa," he said, seriously.
"I'm awful careful what I eat, and I

His Mysterious Malady

Bobby sat up and threw off the afghan impatiently. "I feel fine now," he
said. "I guess I'll go out for awhile."
His father shook his head. "Hold
on a minute," he commanded. "Where
are all those perfectly terrible sensations you had yesterday when you
stayed home from school?"

a night ago," protested Bobby. "A feller
that time."

"Especially as this is Saturday afternoon," said his father, thoughtfully.
"You considered yourself a pretty sick
boy yesterday."

"I was," said Bobby. "Gee, I felt
in my life."

"Then don't you think you ought
to be very careful today?"

"If it was going to be anything it
would have gone and done it by now,"
wouldn't 'a' laid down here, only mamma said I had to. I wish I knew
what did it."

"What did you do on Thursday that
was particularly festive?"

"Well, it was like this," Bobby be-
gan. "Nellie Foster she made fudge,
was swell, all right, only Billy didn't
get a big piece and he whispered that there was too much choo'ut in it. I didn't say a word, but teacher she
heard somebody whisper and she said
for me to go out of the room and wait
downstairs for her."

"I said I didn't whisper, and she
said: 'What makes you always take
that attitude, Robert?'"

"I said I wasn't taking any attitude
—all I had was fudge."

"Then she got mad and sent me
home, because she said I was imperi-
nated."

"Out in the yard I saw Jimmy. His brother's got scab fever and he can't
come to school, but he waits for us
fellows outside. He had an apple and
he gave it to me so's I'd tell him something. Susie Herrick said, I had enough
of Susie Herrick when she was in my
room at school, but Jimmy likes her."

"No," said Bobby. "But I wouldn't
let on that I was stung, so I ate it."

"Did you go home then?"

"Sure not," acknowledged Bobby.
"There wasn't any hurry. Me and Jimmy went over to the park and I got
some peanuts for the squirrels. We couldn't find any squirrels, so we ate
plant peanuts and see how they grow."

"Billy he planted some last year and
we watched for 'em to come up and
then 'long about July he remembered
they were cooked."

JAILED AND HELD ON GRAVE CHARGE

Tupelo Man Taken from O. C. Prisoner and Held by Order of Tupelo City Marshal.

Bob Love, of Tupelo, is in the county jail waiting the pleasure of City Marshal Oats of Tupelo. Love is about 43 years of age and is charged with rape. He has been engaged in the restaurant business at Tupelo but had occasion to shake the dust of that city off his feet this morning. Marshal Oats phones the sheriff's office for the officers here to meet the O. C. and apprehend the alleged criminal, whereupon W. B. Adair did so. Love protests his innocence, even of any knowledge of why he should have been arrested. Apparently he is a man of above the average intelligence, though evidently under the influence to a small degree of an intoxicant.

Marshal Oats of Tupelo will be here either today or tomorrow to return the prisoner to Coal county. No particulars learned about the alleged crime.

H. P. REICH COMES HOME

Resigns Tulsa Bank Job and Accepts Position with the M. & P. Bank

Mr. H. P. Reich, formerly the proprietor of one of the substantial abstract businesses of the city, but who sold out when he was offered an attractive position in a Tulsa bank, has returned to Ada and accepted a responsible position with the Merchants and Planters bank.

Mr. Reich is regarded by the business citizens of the community as being possessed of the cleanest morals and excellent business attainments. His friends hold the finest social regard for him and express pleasure that he has returned for residence.

SOCIALIST CONFERENCE ON SATURDAY

Saturday, as all know was the Socialists' regular meeting day. This last time something out of the ordinary occurred. They went into conference or caucus, just as you please to denominate it, with the purpose to denounce the government and incidentally to discuss party plans and possibilities. The scene of disturbance was at the court house and the extraordinary feature was no body had to hear their orators except the socialists themselves, which act of magnanimity was greatly appreciated by the peace loving citizens in general.

KNOX ITEMS

Corn and oats look very well. Miss Janette Erwin has returned to Ada to attend the normal. We were visited today with a heavy rain which did some damage to cotton.

Mrs. Annie Walker and Mrs. Flora Hampton have left for Milburn, Ark., to visit their sister.

Mrs. Hodge is somewhat bothered about the letter the nightriders put on his gate post the other night.

Mrs. Nora Stockton and little son, Calvin, from Carnegie, Oklahoma, are visiting her father, Abraham Deller, and Uncle G. W. Daller, and other relatives.

DECORATION DAY
Decoration day is a day set apart for decorating the graves of soldiers and sailors who fell in the American Civil war and other wars.
Decoration Day was made so by legislative enactments of various states and the President unites with the various governors of various states in recommending the observance of this day, May 30, as Decoration Day.
The Memorial day of the South is its Decoration day.

Many Matters of Importance Discussed. Good Attendance. Excellent Sermons.

The Fifth Sunday Meeting of the Zion Association met with the North Ada Baptist Church Thursday, May 26. Brother J. W. Bell, being absent, and who was to preach the introductory sermon, Brother W. W. Chancellor, of McAlester, preached the sermon. His theme was the "Jerico's of Life." His text was Heb. 11:30, and he cheered us with his fruitful thoughts and earnestness with which his message was delivered.

Assignment of the following delegates to their homes by the entertainment committee: Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Malloy, of Tupelo; also their two boys; Rev. C. J. Clark, Rev. E. J. Mathews, of Centrahoma; Rev. W. W. Chancellor, T. B. Harrell, of McAlester; Miss Perry, Rev. W. R. Edwards and Rev. W. M. Crabtree, of Savana; Rev. W. A. Hall, of Stonewall and Revs. Cargile and Payne, of Kiowa.

Friday morning, delegates met and organized by Rev. T. B. Harrell in chair. The first on program being devotional exercises by Rev. W. R. Edwards. Second, "Relation of Christians to the Church," led by W. W. Chancellor, who ably discussed the subject, followed by several short speeches. At 11 o'clock Brother C. Stubblefield preached a helpful sermon on the purposes of Christian life. At 1:30 Bro. F. L. Cargile conducted devotional services, after which Bro. W. J. Shipman, of Ada, gave a splendid talk on the cause and cure for Backsliding, after which a general discussion on Civic Righteousness was indulged in.

Saturday night, at 8 Bro. T. B. Harrell discussed purpose of a church to the edification of all present. This closed our program and our people are much uplifted by the meeting.

Brother C. R. Payne preached for us Saturday and those who heard him were delighted with his sermon.

Sunday at 10 o'clock Sunday school mass meeting, lead by C. R. Payne, followed by short addresses from the Revs. Harrell, Cargile and Howerton. 11 o'clock preaching by L. W. Wright, who ably presented the plan of salvation to the delight of our church membership. 3 p. m. Woman's meeting in which much inspiration was gathered from Miss Perry. Sunday night Rev. T. B. Harrell preached an able sermon, at which there were three saved.

Mr. Collins Retires From Active Business to Regain Health.

J. M. Collins has sold his hardware stock on West Main to Messrs. J. G. Evans of Shawnee and J. S. Dennis from Holdenville, and the new firm will take possession as soon as an invoice can be taken. Besides being a strong company financially, both members of the new firm come to Ada recommended as men of the highest integrity and business ability. Mr. Dennis will take up his residence here in the home now occupied by Mr. Collins in Sunrise, and is placing his household effects today. While he is a native of Tennessee, he came from Texas to Oklahoma several years ago and has been successfully engaged in the hardware business in Holdenville until his coming here.

Mr. Collins has been a resident of Ada about a year and a half. While here he has expressed himself as enjoying a good business. He likes the city of Ada both for her commercial advantages and the people whom he has met and for whom he will have a lasting friendship.

Mr. Collins will go from here to Kansas City for a few days and from there to either Colorado or New Mexico, and if he recuperates sufficiently will no doubt return to Ada to make his home.

Justice Court

Six cases have been dismissed today for want of prosecution. The case of Bulah Spears vs I. B. Johnson in replevy suit resulted in a hung jury Friday. The case was then set for Saturday morning, and was submitted to the court and the court was of the opinion that the plaintiff failed to make out their case and gave judgment for the defendants.

His Daughter-in-Law

By John Philip Artie

Granger Malton had ambitions. If it had not been so he never would have attained the eminence in the world that was his, for only dogged persistence, an iron will and desire for power would have sufficed to overcome the handicaps that had been his as a poverty-stricken boy and youth.

Now that all things material were his, he began to yearn for other joys—social supremacy, for one. Shrewd enough to realize the race was run for himself, he centered his schemes and hopes on his only son, Hadley. It made him satisfied with life and repaid him for his struggles when he looked at Hadley, who was everything his father was not—big, handsome, clever of speech and graceful of manner, so distinguished by his spirit of sheer good nature and well being that he was always a marked man when he entered a room. He drew people to him by a magnetism that was irresistible. He was pointed out by the crowd as a shining exception to the general run of extremely rich men's sons, and Granger Malton let himself dream dreams as to Hadley's future, especially concerning his marriage.

Hadley's mother, long dead, had sprung from the same class as Granger himself, and as the older man looked back through the vista of years and recalled her, colorless, faithful, commonplace and awkward, he wondered a little sadly what she would have done with the money and the granite palace and the power that would have been hers. Stern honesty told him she would have done nothing—would have sunk beneath the weight in awkward terror.

He could fancy her shrinking through the big halls of the home he and Hadley occupied. No, Mary would not have been happy, she could not have grown into the station Fate had in store for her. Moreover, she would have hampered him. He was resolved that the girl Hadley married should be one who would not hamper him, for his son was to progress even further than he had done. His wife must have been brought up in luxury from the cradle, so what would have made Hadley's mother gasp would be taken as a matter of course by her. She must have beauty and youth and the sort of sweet haughtiness that comes from careful sheltering and breeding. She must be fitted by birth and bringing up to reign over the huge Malton house on Fifth Avenue and the country place at Newport.

For a year or so, Granger Malton had been calmly reviewing the younger beauties of the town trying to decide which one Hadley should marry, for he never doubted his son's willingness to please him in this point. He was too shrewd to dictate, but he knew how to manage him. Let the boy think he had all the rope he wanted and yet twitch the rope in the direction he wished Hadley to go. He eluded that it was time to disclose carefully his general views to his son one night as they sat over their coffee and cigars in the big library, but his speech was checked by the curious expression on the young man's face. Never had he seen him so pale, so tensely nervous, yet so fearless.

"Father," Hadley broke the silence which fell as Granger Malton's words trailed off into nothingness in his surprise, "don't talk to me of marriage—of your wishes—your views! I have something to tell you myself tonight. I was married this morning to—"

He ceased and sprang forward at his father's ghastly face, but the older man motioned him away as he slowly recovered his self-control. Yet his face was gray and aged from the moment. He stared at Hadley with an awful curiosity, as something new and strange. "Married!" he echoed at last, chokingly. "I can't believe it! You! To do a thing like that! After all my plans. You've spoiled your life! Men don't run off and marry secretly when they are proud of the girl! Who is she? Do I know her?"

"No," said the son, as white as his father. "You don't know her. But—" Granger Malton lost his head as the full realization of what this meant broke over him. He shook one trembling hand at his son. "Go!" he said hoarsely. "It might as well be now, for the break would come, sooner or later! I'll have no shop girl or chorus girl brought here to make me a laugh ing much before the very servants in the shop girl."

Hadley Malton looked at the distraught old man quietly. "No," he said again, "but she earns her own living. Ines Dartmoor—"

"It's all the same," his father interrupted roughly. "Leave me! I'm done with you, Hadley! You've got ample means of your own I've settled on you—you won't starve!"

Grimly he watched the tall, straight figure vanish through the doorway. That was the last he saw of his son for many a day, and often as the scene recurred to him he remembered his sarcastic taunt: "You won't starve!"

He grew grimmer as the days and months went on bringing no word from Hadley. Seemingly he and his wife—how Granger writhed at the word—had dropped off the earth. Hadley's friends were not his, and he rarely ran across anyone who inquired for his son. A great hunger to know where the boy was and if all was well possessed him. There was nothing but bitterness in his heart when he thought of the unwelcome daughter-in-law thrust upon him so suddenly. He tried to reason out why a young man as aristocratic as Hadley should have chosen to fall in love with an ordinary girl, a girl he had to run away and marry, because he knew his father would not welcome her. He remembered dimly that Hadley had said her name was Ines, but that meant nothing. She was unknown. He could not be proud of her. His bitter sorrow over the daughter-in-law of his fancy, whom he would have showered with gifts, spoiled with his admiration and to whose pretty rule he would have bent cheerfully, was pathetic. She was an impossibility now; the brilliant future that would have been Hadley's was lost.

Life was very bitter these days for Granger Malton, and he was aging fast, growing more taciturn, more of a recluse. Even his business associates saw little of him. He roamed the great granite house sadly, fancying it as it might have been, realizing its uselessness now.

Eight months had passed and still no word from Hadley. Beneath his dull anger was growing the pitiful hopelessness of age, the one wish to see his son again, to have him near. Granger Malton had reached the point where, if he had known Hadley's whereabouts, he would have asked him to come and see him.

But he would not ask his wife, and he knew Hadley would never cross the threshold again till she came with him.

It was some days later, at the close of a conference with Simon Dalry, who was interested in the same mines that Malton had interests in, and who had just come home from Europe and was bluff of speech. He slapped Granger Malton on the shoulder as he got to his feet and stood drawing on his gloves.

"Say," he cried, "why didn't you let a fellow know Hadley was married. Met 'em over in Paris, but I can't say I saw much of them, as they—Mrs. Malton, rather—was so much in demand. She's the most popular person in the American colony there, I reckon, judging from the invitations I saw piled up on her desk. Hadley always did have luck. Not one man in fifty gets the combination he did—beauty and talent and family. Why, Ines Dartmoor's people have ancestors to burn, but they didn't have any money till she developed into a genius. They say she'll be the greatest woman sculptor of her day, if she isn't now. She's the most graceful girl, and her eyes—oh, well, you know all about it. Hadley told me about his wedding—how it took a year for her to make up her mind and he didn't give her ten minutes to change it again, but whisked her off to a minister's at once. You're in luck to have such a daughter-in-law."

Granger Malton sat long after his friend left. He was thinking. He remembered now—Miss Dartmoor, whom people had talked about and raved over and so rarely could drag away from her studio. He knew nothing about art, but he did know the prices. Ines Dartmoor's work had brought, for the papers always mentioned it. And he had sneeringly called her a shop girl when Hadley had said she earned her own living. Granger Malton had all the awe of genius that belongs to the uncultured man. He remembered, too, the kind of people who had sought after her. Presently he pulled over to him a cable blank which he addressed to Hadley in care of his Paris bankers. What he wrote with quick, decided fingers was brief. It read:

King Sees Doctor Daily.

In all there are 25 physicians and surgeons attached to King Edward's household. Of these, however, four are appointed in Ireland and an equal number in Scotland and would, in the event of their services being required, only be called upon to attend the king when the court happened to be in Ireland or Scotland. There are five physicians altogether specially appointed to attend King Edward, but Sir Francis Laking, one of the physicians-in-ordinary, is his majesty's most frequent medical adviser.

The king sees one of the household physicians every day, but the interview is a mere matter of form and lasts but a few minutes. The fact, however, that the interview has taken place is noted in the medical diary in charge of the physicians-in-ordinary, in which is kept a daily record of his majesty's health.

Popping Corn and a Question

"Ah!" said Mr. Luckey, advancing into the room. "A wood fire!" "Yes," smiled Miss Doty, looking up. "Isn't it nice!" "Fine!" exclaimed Mr. Luckey, sitting on the edge of a chair. "Fine!" "It always looks so—so—" began Miss Doty.

"So cheerful!" cried Mr. Luckey. "No, I didn't mean that; but so—so—" "So warm!" cried Mr. Luckey. "No, not warm exactly, but so—so—" "So homelike!" he asked.

"Yes," she softly answered, making eyes at him, and she sank on a hassock by the side of the fire, as though in any contemplation of this scene as a homelike spectacle, she was going to be in the picture.

"Have you an open fireplace in your room?" she asked, striving to present to his mind the antithesis of his present state of momentary happiness.

"No," he mourned, "no such luck." "Poor boy!" she whispered to the fire. "Poor boy!"

"No such luck!" he repeated mournfully.

"Draw up your chair a little nearer," she kindly said to him. "There, now, isn't that comfortable?" "Fine!" said Mr. Luckey. "Fine!" Did you ever see anything like the way it rained today?

She frowned slightly and was apparently about to change the subject, but thought better of it at the last moment.

"I hope it won't rain tonight," she said.

"So do I," said he.

"I always feel so sorry when you have to leave in the rain."

"So do I," said he.

She made eyes at him again, sighed at the silence more in sorrow than in anger and all at once looked brisk and excited.

"Gracious!" she cried, "I nearly forgot!"

"Forgot what?" he asked.

"I've got a corn popper and a lot of corn. Shall we make some popcorn?"

"Yes," he cried. "That would be lots of fun."

She ran out into the kitchen and took the corn popper from a book.

"Where's the corn, Sarah?" she asked the cook.

"I tell you the corn won't pop!" exclaimed the cook. "I told you once and I tell you again that there corn ain't the kind to pop."

She took the corn nevertheless and went back into the parlor.

He moved over silently and she sat down beside him. It was one of those large, comfortable Turkish rockers with high arms and back, just right for two, and as she leaned over to pop the corn the cosy light of the fire played on her face and showed just where her dimples were.

She shook the popper with a vigorous arm, he moved over to give her more elbow room.

"It doesn't pop," she pouted.

They watched the corn carefully, both leaning forward, with their heads very close together.

"You hold it," she said; but as he took the handle she cried, "Wait!" and seized the popper again, unconsciously placing her hand over his. "I thought I saw one pop then!" she cried.

She took the popper from him and holding it over the fire she fell to shaking it again, crying:

"Pop! Pop! Hang you, pop! Don't you see I'm waiting for you to pop? Pop! pop! pop, I tell you! I never saw anything so slow in all my life! What's the matter with you anyway? Don't you know how to pop? Good grief! Pop! pop! Isn't there any pop in you? Pop! pop! pop, I tell you! POP!"

And as she shook the handle, oh, ever so vigorously, a hand was bashfully placed over hers, an arm was timidly placed about her waist—and Mr. Luckey popped.

Bad End to Boyish Prank.

A number of April fool stunts which Harry Edwards and his younger brother, Fred, played in the attic of their home at Arlington, N. J., resulted in the death of Harry. The two brothers were going to an April fools' party, but before they left they went up to the attic of the house. Fred left his brother for a few minutes to get something downstairs. When he returned he discovered Harry hanging from a rafter. He called to him but received no answer. Around his neck was a thin leather strap, such as the boys use for their school books. Fred cut this and his brother dropped to the floor dead. The only explanation the police could get was that Harry probably wanted to fool his brother and make him believe that he had hanged himself. He stood up on a couch and may have slipped off accidentally.

Mr. Adeo in Europe.

Second Assistant Secretary Adeo of the state department is on his annual vacation in Europe. In company with Mr. Thacker, United States consul general at Berlin, and Mrs. Thacker, he will devote about six weeks to a bicycle tour of southern France. He expects to return to Washington about the middle of June.

LORIMER DEMANDS INVESTIGATION

MADE PLAUSIBLE ANSWERS

Had Bitterly Scathed Newspapers, and Man Who Signed First Statement.

Washington, D. C., May 28.—A deluge of righteous indignation was poured into the ears of a respectful Senate this afternoon by Senator Lorimer of Illinois.

In his demand for a Senatorial investigation of the charges that he obtained his election to the Senate through bribery, Senator Lorimer, while prolific in vitriolic denunciation of the Republican Chicago newspaper and the men who furnished the evidence on which the Illinois bribery and perjury indictments against Illinois State solons have been obtained, did not leave the impression after his long speech that the new Illinois Senator had made a particularly strong answer to the charges against his method of getting into the United States Senate.

News Reached Washington Even while Senator Lorimer was speaking on the floor of the Senate news reached Washington and obtained.

ed quick circulation that a Democratic State Senator of Illinois, D. W. Holtsblaw, had just been indicted for perjury in denying that he had arranged for a meeting in connection with the Lorimer election. Holtsblaw voted for Lorimer, giving as his reason, an excuse which has become popular in Washington of late, that he wanted to embarrass the Republican party in Illinois.

The news of the latest Illinois indictments circulated in the State simultaneously with the Lorimer denial of guilt and denunciation of his accusers.

Charges Against Newspaper Bitter attacks and sensational charges against the Chicago Tribune which first printed the story of the alleged bribery and denunciation of Charles A. White, who signed the first statement as to bribery, and a general airing of many phases of Illinois political developments in connection with his election were feature of the speech.

Medill McCormick editor of the Chicago Tribune came in for a particularly bitter scathing by Senator Lorimer. McCormick was denounced as this loathsome detestable creature, guilty of this and other violations of decency, who should and will be in the future, as in the past, shunned and avoided by all decent people.

"GRANDFATHER CLAUSE" PETITIONS FILED

Oklahoma City, May 29.—That the sentiment of democrats of Oklahoma is largely with 'us in the effort to restrict the voting franchise in the elimination of ignorant negroes was evidenced by the fact that it required but thirty-three days to secure the names of 42,000 democrats to our petitions asking the submission of a suffrage restriction amendment.

The time required for the securing of these names was a record-breaker in Oklahoma. Ten thousand dollars in cash and five months work were required to complete the petition filed by the Sons of Washington asking a resubmission of the prohibition question. Twelve thousand dollars and six months were required to get the necessary number of names to get the petition amendment to the constitution affecting railroad construction. It required sixty days to get the names that appeared on the petition asking that the state capital be permanently located.

Leaders Here. Democrats from all over Oklahoma swarmed into Oklahoma City Sunday and Chairman Branson, weary of a task that has required no small amount of energy, but cheerful over his remarkable accomplishments, received the plaudits and congratulations of the assembled leaders and followers in the cause.

I am convinced the Oklahoma democrats are almost a unit for the suffrage restriction measure, continued Chairman Branson. When other petitions were circulated they were placed before all the people regardless of politics and the task in any case was not easy. We applied largely to democrats, and while a few republicans signed the petition, the time limit is remarkable, considering that it required the name of one out of every three voting democrats in the state. We feel encouraged and look

Points Small Caliber Gun at Hotel Guests Who Rush to the Scene.

Sulphur, Okla., May 29.—Mrs. Anna East of Wynnewood lies dead in an undertaker's parlor and by her side lies H. L. Nelson, a retired business man of Apache, also dead.

At 10 o'clock this morning while all but four of the guests of the Graham Hotel, in West Sulphur, were at the Springs, two of the guests, seated on the veranda, heard a shot and a cry in the lobby.

Rushing in they were confronted at the door by Nelson, who pointed a small caliber pistol at them and ordered them away. On their return to town for officers they heard two more shots fired. Upon their return with the Sheriff Mrs. East, guest of the hotel, was found sitting erect in a rocker dead, a bullet hole through her head and one through her cheek, pieces of her diamond ring sticking to the cheek wound.

Worthy Young Minister.

Mr. Finis L. Cargile, who was reared in Franklin county, Texas, the former home of several Ada folks, is attending the Fifth Sunday Baptist meeting. Mr. Cargile is a young Baptist minister and lately graduated from Baylor University, one of the leading Baptist schools of the nation. He is known to be a splendid young man and it is hoped will accept the pastorate of some Oklahoma church.

SINGING CONVENTION AT GREEN HILL YESTERDAY

There was a large attendance at the singing convention held at what is generally known as Green Hill school house, five miles north of Fitzhugh, yesterday. The singing was under the leadership of Mr. George Page of Lightning Ridge. It was singing all day and dinner on the ground. The day was perfect and everybody enjoyed the occasion in the good old fashioned way.

$2,500 FOR SENATOR'S VOTE

BIG GRAFT EXPOSED

A Bomb Burst in Legislative Circles that Has Dumbfounded
a State.

therefor $2,500. I also received $700
which was given to me without explanation, with the statement that it
was coming to me. I was promised $1,500 for my connection with letting of the furniture contract—State Senator Holtzlaw.

Springfield, Ill., May 28.—Bursting
like a bomb within a few hours after
John Broderick, a leading Chicago
Democrat, was indicted on a bribery
charge by the Grand Jury here to-
day. Broderick's indictment was the direct result of a confession made
to the Grand Jury by State Senator
D. W. Holtzlaw of Iowa. Holtzlaw says Broderick paid him $2,500 to vote for Lorimer for Senator. A cap-
ias was at once ordered for Broderick
and a bench warrant issued for his arrest.

Says He Got $2,500.
The unexpected turn in the Lorimer scandal was an offshot to State Attorney Burke's investigation of alleged graft in a legislative furniture
deal. Senator Holtzlaw had been indicted on a charge of perjury in connection with the furniture contract
and upon the advice of his counsel
when offered immunity agreed to
make a confession. He told the
for his vote for Lorimer $700 as his
share of a legislative jackpot and a promise of $1,500 as his share of the
statehouse furniture deal.

Sensor Holtzlaw's confession regarding the furniture deal was corroborated before the grand jury by Otto Preier of Chicago, who as agent
for the Ford-Johnson Furniture Co.,
obtained the furniture contract.

Confession Involves Others.
The two confessions regarding the
furniture contract resulted in two additional indictments on a conspiracy
charge. These were State Senator
S. C. Pemberton (Rep.) of Oakland,
Ill., and Representative Joseph S.
Clark (Dem.) of Vandavia, Ill.

As in the case of Senator Broderick in the Lorimer alleged bribery
matter, capias and bench warrants
were immediately issued for Senator
Pemberton and Representative Clark
on the conspiracy charges in connection with the furniture contracts.

Confessor Has Immunity.
Although an indictment charging
conspiracy was returned against Sen-
nolled and immunity for Holtzlaw
hollied and immunity for Holtzlaw
was ordered by Judge James A. Creighton, upon the recommendation of State's Attorney Burke.

When the indictments had been returned and the court orders entered
in the two separate scandals the
members of the Grand Jury adjourned
until next Tuesday.

After conferences with Attorney A.
M. Fitzgerald his lawyer Senator
with States Attorney Burke. Worn
haggard and driven almost to dis-
traction during a sleepless night,
Senator Holtzlaw told the prosecutor
he was ready to confess and all li-
ability to prosecution and punishment
was waived when immunity was offered and later granted because Holtzlaw was a material witness.

Before going to the Grand Jury
room Holtzlaw made a preliminary
statement to States Attorney Burke
in the presence of his attorney.

Baptist Sunday Services

Dr. Harris preached three sermons
yesterday and at each service the
house was filled to its available accommodation. This preacher is personally strongly attracting the people who hear him not only for the pronouncedness of his Christian sincerity and intellectual utterances,
but for the manner of his appearance
before them always polished and
gentlemanly.

The meeting will continue in progress.

A party of Ada's popular young people went to Sulphur yesterday to spend the day. To be sure they had a most enjoyable time. They were
Earl Summers, Bob Guest, Misses Maudena Carney and Mollie Barringer.

All His Friends Astounded; Wife Mys-
Buried Yesterday

Why Bob Carroll of Fitzhugh who
is thought suicided Saturday, should
have wanted to take his own life if
he were a suicide will always be an
unsolved mystery to his most confidential friends and even to his immediate family who would come nearer knowing the reason if any than
anybody else.

There is something back of this—
there is something back of this that I do not understand, said Mr. Chilcutt of Fitzhugh. Mr. Carroll's father-
in-law who with eleven other men
had hurried to Ada on hearing of the tragedy. If he and his wife had
ever had any trouble why there might
be some reasons to think he was
troubled over that he continued. He
fairly idolized his wife and children, and they did him, so there something back of this that I don't understand. He was up here after
some of his cattle that were here
and had just written me to send my
son to help him so I know he did
not have any intention of killing himself a few hours ago if he did do
such a thing. And," said he. He Bob should be in fairly good circumstances financially. And thus it is no one seems to have any plausible
excuse they would offer for Car-
roll's action.

The coroner's jury returned a verdict of death due to strychnine. It appears that he purchased some of
the deadly poison to kill wolves with
some few days previous to his death.
However some think that he had
been boozing and took the medicine
while intoxicated. Others think that
perhaps he got hold of some poisonous whiskey. So there is only one thing known positively, and that is
no one knows exactly why Bob Car-
roll a man whose family relations
were congenial whose finances were
in good shape should want to end his
own life.

His body was removed to Fitzhugh
Saturday evening, and was interred at Rock cemetery Sunday under the auspices of the W. O. W.

Mrs. Carroll so complete overcome with grief that she was not able nor allowed to attend her husband's funeral.

HEAVY FIGHTING AT BLUEFIELDS

Large Body of American Troops De-
Consulates.

New Orleans, May 28.—That severe
fighting with unusually heavy casu-
ality list on both sides marked to-
day's events at Bluefields, is indicated
in the skeletonized cablegrams received here tonight by representatives
of both the Madriz and provisional governments of Nicaragua. Neither
side claims victory.

Bluefields, May 28.—This city was
thrown into a panic today by the report that a general attack had been
ordered by the Madriz forces.

The city is surrounded by the enemy on land and sea. 500 Madriz soldiers holding the bluff and boats being ready for the attack on Blue-
fields proper.

The chief reliance of the insurgents
is the American force of gunners.

It was learned today that General
Arias had prepared to ask permission
to bombard the city from Commander
Gilbert of the United States gunboat
Peducah. The American commander
it was stated would probably refuse
in which event the only course of action open to the regulars would be

the wharves within an hour and Madriz can land troops within rifle
shot of the insurgents. Estrada said
to his gunners after his refusal to
surrender. "We can hold the positions
as long as the ammunition lasts."

Surrender of the bluff was the most
disheartening blow the insurgents
have suffered since the collapse of
the advance on Managua. In a position well nigh impregnable which 100 men could have held Zelodon
surrendered with little opposition
while he had 200 men under him to repulse an attacking force of 500.

Most of the insurgents escaped to Bluefields by boat. A large body of American troops were detailed today

Ideals of Our Mothers.

As for the difference between us and
our mothers, of course we all begin by
do our duty as well as they did our consciences will acquit us. Who of
us women, in our comfortable living,
dare compare ourselves to our mothers? They did not talk about their
"rights" they fulfilled them—in taking care of their families. They did not talk about "reforms," they would have
thought interference in municipal questions and agitation for legislation most unbecoming and unfeminine. They had—bless their dear hearts!—a gentle
and ladylike irresponsibility in regard
to the world lying in darkness in city
halls or legislative chambers—though
they gave their pennies toward the
saying of souls in dark Africa with a
true, even tender emotion, to which
most of us are strangers. No, the
mothers of 40 or 50 years ago had no
theories about improving the world (except the heathen) outside their own respectable doors, but they had
strength and patience and tenderness
and courage and selflessness. (That I think, would be the name of their
ideal—selflessness.) Can we remember that selflessness and see no difference between it and the present feminine individualism?—Margaret Deland
in Atlantic

Willing to Accommodate.

A timid girl, unacquainted with the
city, rounded the corner of the Mint
and, spying a youth "gazing lovelingly" into one of the shop windows, softly touched him on the
shoulder.

The young man turned suddenly
around and inquired in a harsh voice
what she sought.

Will you kindly tell me the name
of that big building over there?" she
asked, pointing her index finger at
the public buildings.

"Why, that's City Hall, or public buildings, or whatever you want to
call it," he answered.

"Well, who occupies it?" she again
inquired.

The young man was obviously
growing tired and let her question go
unanswered.

"May I go up to the top where the
a quivering voice.

Throwing out his chest and putting
his thumbs in the armpoles in his vest
he condescendingly replied: "You may
this time, but don't you ever ask me

Has the Uplifting.

"What has become of that uplift for
the farmer?"
"It came to pass all right," replied
Mr. Corntassel. "This big boost in prices was exactly the kind of an up-
lift we needed."

able the kitchen is these warm

erate your sewing machine,

complished with electricity

His Mysterious Malady

Bobby sat up and threw off the afghan impatiently. "I feel fine now," he
said. "I guess I'll go out for awhile."
His father shook his head. "Hold
on a minute," he commanded. "Where
are all those perfectly terrible sensations you had yesterday when you
stayed home from school?"
"Oh, well, that was a whole day and
a night ago," protested Bobby. "A feller
could get well of 'most anything in
that time."

"Especially as this is Saturday afternoon," said his father, thoughtfully.
"You considered yourself a pretty sick
boy yesterday."

"I was," said Bobby. "Gee, I felt
something fierce. I never felt worse
in my life."

"Then don't you think you ought
to be very careful today?"
"If it was going to be anything it would have gone and done it by now,"
said Bobby. "Besides, I feel swell. I wouldn't 'a' laid down here, only mamma said I had to. I wish I knew
what did it."

"What did you do on Thursday that
was particularly festive?"

"Well, it was like this," Bobby be-
gan. "Nellie Foster she made fudge,
was swell, all right, only Billy didn't
get a big piece and he whispered that there was too much choc'lat in it. I didn't say a word, but teacher she
heard somebody whisper and she said
for me to go out of the room and wait
downstairs for her."

"I said I didn't whisper, and she
said 'What makes you always take
that attitude, Robert?'"

"I said I wasn't taking any attitude
—all I had was fudge."

"Then she got mad and sent me
home, because she said I was imperi-
nent."

"Out in the yard I saw Jimmy. His brother's got scarlet fever and he can't
come to school, but he waits for us
fellows outside. He had an apple and
he gave it to me so's I'd tell him something. Susie Herrick said I had enough
of Susie Herrick when she was in my
room at school, but Jimmy likes her."

"Was it a good apple?"
"No," said Bobby. "But I wouldn't
let on that I was stung, so I ate it."

"Did you go home then?"

"Sure not," acknowledged Bobby.
"There wasn't any hurry. Me and Jimmy went over to the park and I got
some peanuts for the squirrels. We couldn't find any squirrels, so we ate
the peanuts ourselves. I'm going to
plant peanuts and see how they grow.
Billy he planted some last year and
we watched for 'em to come up and
then 'long about July he remembered
they were cooked."

"I thought Billy lived in a fat."

"He does, but he borrowed our yard
to plant the peanuts. You know that big white house on the corner of aunt Mary's street?"

"Yes."
"Well, who do you s'pose is going to live there? Just Mamie Kelly," said Bobby, triumphantly. "I most fell
over when she told me. Gee, she'll be
more conceited than ever when she's
got three lilac bushes and a woodshed
in her yard."

"You were telling me what you did Thursday?"

"Oh, so I was. Well, then I got some popcorn and we went home to
lunch and I was awful hungry. I ate
a lot and I took three bananas to
school, so's I wouldn't be hungry in
the afternoon. I was going to give
one to Billy and one to Nellie Foster,
but first thing I knew I ate them all.
I was awful sorry I had when Nellie Foster gave me a big piece of choc'lat cake after school. It was some
quashed from her carrying it in a bag,
but it was awful good. I got her a
ice cream cone, but she didn't want it,
and I had to eat 'em both myself. I never seen—saw—a girl that didn't
like ice cream before."

"It is rather unusual."
"She felt awful bad about it; she was afraid I'd be mad, especially because they was nickel ones, but I didn't care much. Mamie Kelly gave
me two big pickles, but the cones was
gone by that time, so she didn't get
any."

"But you ate the pickles?"
"Yep, I did," acknowledged Bobby,
sheepishly. "But I said Thanks just
as Sam came along, and she gave him
one, too. Then, of course, Sam he gave me some choc'lat creams. Say, the place he knows about where
you can get lots of 'em for ten cents
Gee, but they're swell!"

Were they the best things you had
that day?"

"I should say not!" cried Bobby, with enthusiasm. "Why, I had three pieces
of strawberry shortcake for dinner."

"Well, perhaps it was the shortcake
that saved your life."

"Mamma thinks it was the medicine," said Bobby. "I certainly feel fine now. If I stay here I'll just get
weaker and weaker till I can't get up,
so I'd like to go outdoors. There's a ball game over in the big lot and I'm
to pitch."

"Are you sure you ought to go?"
"Oh, yes. I can't see how it helps
any to keep a feller in bed when he
gets sick like that without any reason.
Anyhow, there's Billy whistling for
me."

"All right," laughed his father. "Go ahead, but be careful not to eat any
trash today."

Bobby paused a moment at the door.
"Honest, papa," he said, seriously.
"I'm awful careful what I eat, and I

Many Matters of Importance Discussed. Good Attendance. Excellent Sermons.

The Fifth Sunday Meeting of the Zion Association met with the North Ada Baptist Church Thursday, May 26. Brother J. W. Bell, being absent, and who was to preach the introductory sermon, Brother W. W. Chancellor, of McAlester, preached the sermon. His theme was the "Jericho's of Life." His text was Heb. 11:30, and he cheered us with his fruitful thoughts and earnestness with which his message was delivered.

Assignment of the following delegates to their homes by the entertainment committee: Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Malloy, of Tupelo; also their two boys; Rev. G. J. Clark, Rev. E. J. Matthews, of Centrahoma; Rev. W. W. Chancellor, T. B. Harrell, of McAlester; Miss Perry, Rev. W. R. Edwards and Rev. W. M. Crabtree, of Savana; Rev. W. A. Hall, of Stone- wall and Revs. Cargile and Payne, of Kiowa.

Friday morning, delegates met and organized by Rev. T. B. Harrell in chair. The first on program being devotional exercises by Rev. W. R. Edwards. Second, "Relation of Christians to the Church," led by W. W. Chancellor, who ably discussed the subject, followed by several short speeches. At 11 o'clock Brother C. Stubblefield preached a helpful sermon on the "purpose of Christian life." At 1:30 Bro. F. L. Cargile conducted devotional services, after which Bro. W. J. Shipman, of Ada, gave a splendid talk on the cause and cure for Backsliding, after which a general discussion on Civic Righteousness was indulged in.

Saturday night, at 8 Bro. T. B. Harrell discussed purpose of a church to the edification of all present. This closed our program and our people are much uplifted by the meeting.

Brother C. R. Payne preached for us Saturday and those who heard him were delighted with his sermon.

Sunday at 10 o'clock Sunday school mass meeting, lead by C. R. Payne, followed by short addresses from the Revs. Harrell, Cargile and Howerton. 11 o'clock preaching by L. W. Wright, who ably presented the plan of salvation to the delight of our church membership. 3 p. m. Woman's meeting in which much inspiration was gathered from Miss Perry. Sunday night Rev. T. B. Harrell preached an able sermon, at which there were three saved.

AN INTERESTING PROGRAM

COLLINS HARDWARE STOCK SOLD

Mr. Collins Retires From Active Business to Regain Health.

J. M. Collins has sold his hardware stock on West Main to Messrs. J. G. Evans of Shawnee and J. S. Dennis from Holdenville, and the new firm will take possession as soon as an invoice can be taken. Besides being a strong company financially, both members of the new firm come to Ada recommended as men of the highest integrity and business ability. Mr. Dennis will take up his residence here in the home now occupied by Mr. Collins in Sunrise, and is placing his household effects today. While he is a native of Tennessee, he came from Texas to Oklahoma several years ago and has been successfully engaged in the hardware business in Holdenville until his coming here.

Mr. Collins has been a resident of Ada about a year and a half. While here he has expressed himself as enjoying a good business. He likes the city of Ada both for her commercial advantages and the people whom he has met and for whom he will have a lasting friendship.

Mr. Collins will go from here to Kansas City for a few days and from there to either Colorado or New Mexico, and if he recuperates sufficiently will no doubt return to Ada to make his home.

Justice Court

Six cases have been dismissed today for want of prosecution. The case of Bulah Spears vs. I. B. Johnson in replevy suit resulted in a hung jury Friday. The case was then set for Saturday morning, and was submitted to the court and the court was of the opinion that the plaintiff failed to make out their case and gave judgment for the defendants.

His Daughter-in-Law

Granger Malton had ambitions. If it had not been so he never would have attained the eminence in the world that was his, for only dogged persistence, an iron will and desire for power would have sufficed to overcome the handicaps that had been his as a poverty stricken boy and youth.

Now that all things material were his, he began to yearn for other joys—social supremacy, for one. Shrewd enough to realize the race was run for himself, he centered his schemes and hopes on his only son, Hadley. It made him satisfied with life and repaid him for his struggles when he looked at Hadley, who was everything his father was not—big, handsome, clever of speech and graceful of manner, so distinguished by his spirit of sheer good nature and well being that he was always a marked man when he entered a room. He drew people to him by a magnetism that was irresistible. He was pointed out by the crowd as a shining exception to the general run of extremely rich men's sons, and Granger Malton let himself dream dreams as to Hadley's future, especially concerning his marriage.

Hadley's mother, long dead, had sprung from the same class as Granger himself, and as the older man looked back through the vista of years and recalled her, colorless, faithful, commonplace and awkward, he wondered a little sadly what she would have done with the money and the granite palace and the power that would have been hers. Stern honesty told him she would have done nothing—would have sunk beneath the weight in awkward terror.

He could fancy her shrinking through the big halls of the home he and Hadley occupied. No, Mary would not have been happy, she could not have grown into the station Fate had in store for her. Moreover, she would have hampered him. He was resolved that the girl Hadley married should be one who would not hamper him, for his son was to progress even further than he had done. His wife must have brought up in luxury from the cradle, so what would have made Hadley's mother gasp would be taken as a matter of course by her. She must have beauty and youth and the sort of sweet haughtiness that comes from careful sheltering and breeding. She must be fitted by birth and bringing up to reign over the huge Malton house on Fifth Avenue and the country place at Newport.

For a year or so, Granger Malton had been calmly reviewing the young beauties of the town trying to decide which one Hadley should marry, for he never doubted his son's willingness to please him in this point. He was too shrewd to dictate, but he knew how to manage him. Let the boy think he had all the rope he wanted and yet twitch the rope in the direction he wished Hadley to go. He decided that it was time to disclose carefully his general views to his son one night as they sat over their coffee and cigars in the big library, but his speech was checked by the curious expression on the young man's face. Never had he seen him so pale, so tensely nervous, yet so fearless.

"Father," Hadley broke the silence which fell as Granger Malton's words trailed off into nothingness in his surprise. "don't talk to me of marriage—of your wishes—your views! I have something to tell you myself tonight. I was married this morning to—"

He ceased and sprang forward at his father's ghastly face, but the older man motioned him away as he slowly recovered his self-control. Yet his face was gray and aged from the moment. He stared at Hadley with an awful curiosity, as something new and strange. "Married!" he echoed at last, chokingly. "I can't believe it! You! To do a thing like that! After all my plans. You've spoiled your life! Men don't run off and marry secretly when they are proud of the girl! Who is she? Do I know her?"

"No," said the son, as white as his father. "You don't know her. But—"

Granger Malton lost his head as the full realization of what this meant broke over him. He shook one trembling hand at his son. "Go!" he said hoarsely. "It might as well be now, for the break would come, sooner or later! I'll have no shop girl or chorus girl brought here to make me a laugh ing stick before the very servant in this a shop girl?"

Hadley Malton looked at the distraught old man quietly. "No," he said again, "but she earns her own living. Ines Dartmoor—"

"It's all the same," his father interrupted roughly. "Leave me! I'm done with you, Hadley! You've got ample means of your own I've settled on you—you won't starve!"

Grimly he watched the tall, straight figure vanish through the doorway. That was the last he saw of his son for many a day, and often as the scene recurred to him he remembered his sarcastic taunt "You won't starve!"

He grew grimmer as the days and months went on bringing no word from Hadley. Seemingly he and his wife—how Granger writhed at the word—had dropped off the earth. Hadley's friends were not his, and he rarely ran across anyone who inquired for his son. A great hunger to know where the boy was and if all was well possessed him. There was nothing but bitterness in his heart when he thought of the unwelcome daughter-in-law thrust upon him so suddenly. He tried to reason out why a young man as aristocratic as Hadley should have chosen to fall in love with an ordinary girl, a girl he had to run away and marry, because he knew his father would not welcome her. He remembered dimly that Hadley had said her name was Ines, but that meant nothing. She was unknown! He could not be proud of her. His bitter sorrow over the daughter-in-law of his fancy, whom he would have showered with gifts, spoiled with his admiration and to whose pretty rule he would have bent cheerfully, was pathetic. She was an impossibility now; the brilliant future that would have been Hadley's was lost.

Life was very bitter these days for Granger Malton, and he was aging fast, growing more taciturn, more of a recluse. Even his business associates saw little of him. He roamed the great granite house sadly fancying it as it might have been, realizing its uselessness now.

Eight months had passed and still no word from Hadley. Beneath his dull anger was growing the pitiful hopelessness of age, the one wish to see his son again, to have him near. Granger Malton had reached the point where, if he had known Hadley's whereabouts, he would have asked him to come and see him.

But he would not ask his wife, and he knew Hadley would never cross the threshold again till she came with him.

It was some days later, at the close of a conference with Simon Daly, who was interested in the same mines that Malton had interests in, and who had just come home from Europe and was bluff of speech. He slapped Granger Malton on the shoulder as he got to his feet and stood drawing on his gloves.

"Say," he cried, "why didn't you let a fellow know Hadley was married. Met 'em over in Paris, but I can't say I saw much of them, as they—Mrs. Malton, rather—was so much in demand. She's the most popular person in the American colony there, I reckon, judging from the invitations I saw piled up on her desk. Hadley always did have luck. Not one man in fifty gets the combination he did—beauty and talent and family. Why, Ines Dartmoor's people have ancestors to burn, but they didn't have any money till she developed into a genius. They say she'll be the greatest woman sculptor of her day, if she isn't now. She's the most graceful girl, and her eyes—oh, well, you know all about it. Hadley told me about his wedding—how it took a year for her to make up her mind and he didn't give her ten minutes to change it again, but whisked her off to a minister's at once. You're in luck to have such a daughter-in-law!"

Granger Malton sat long after his friend left. He was thinking. He remembered now—Miss Dartmoor, whom people had talked about and raved over and so rarely could drag away from her studio. He knew nothing about art, but he did know the prices Ines Dartmoor's work had brought, for the papers always mentioned it. And he had sneeringly called her a shop girl when Hadley had said she earned her own living. Granger Malton had all the awe of genius that belongs to the uncultured man. He remembered, too, the kind of people who had sought after her. Presently he pulled over to him a cable blank which he addressed to Hadley in care of his Paris bankers. What he wrote with quick, decided fingers was brief. It read:

King See Doctor Daily.

In all there are 25 physicians and surgeons attached to King Edward's household. Of these, however, four are appointed in Ireland and an equal number in Scotland and would, in the event of their services being required, only be called upon to attend the king when the court happened to be in Ireland or Scotland. There are five physicians altogether specially appointed to attend King Edward, but Sir Francis Laking, one of the physicians-in-ordinary, is his majesty's most frequent medical adviser.

The king sees one of the household physicians every day, but the interview is a mere matter of form and lasts but a few minutes. The fact, however, that the interview has taken place is noted in the medical diary in charge of the physicians-in-ordinary, in which is kept a daily record of his majesty's health.

Popping Corn and a Question

"Yes," smiled Miss Dotty, looking up. "Isn't it nice!"

"Fine!" exclaimed Mr. Luckey, sitting on the edge of a chair. "Fine!"

"It always looks so—so!" began Miss Dotty.

"So cheerful!" cried Mr. Luckey.

"No, I didn't mean that, but so—"

"So warm!" cried Mr. Luckey.

"No, not warm exactly, but so—"

"So homelike!" he asked.

"Yes," she softly answered, making eyes at him, and she sank on a hassock by the side of the fire, as though in any contemplation of this scene as a homelike spectacle, she was going to be in the picture.

"Have you an open fireplace in your room?" she asked, striving to present to his mind the antithesis of his present state of momentary happiness.

"No," he mourned, "no such luck."

"Poor boy!" she whispered to the fire. "Poor boy!"

"No such luck!" he repeated mournfully.

"Fine!" said Mr. Luckey. "Fine!"

Did you ever see anything like the way it rained today?"

She frowned slightly and was apparently about to change the subject, but thought better of it at the last moment.

"I hope it won't rain tonight," she said.

"So do I," said he.

"I always feel so sorry when you have to leave in the rain."

"So do I," said he.

She made eyes at him again, sighed at the silence more in sorrow than in anger and all at once looked brisk and excited.

"Gracious!" she cried, "I nearly forgot!"

"Forgot what?" he asked.

"I've got a corn popper and a lot of corn. Shall we make some popcorn?"

"Yes!" he cried. That would be lots of fun."

She ran out into the kitchen and took the corn popper from a hook.

Where's the corn, Sarah?" she asked the cook.

"I tell you the corn won't pop!" exclaimed the cook. "I told you once and I tell you again that there corn ain't the kind to pop."

She took the corn nevertheless and went back into the parlor.

He moved over silently and she sat down beside him. It was one of those large, comfortable Turkish rockers with high arms and back, just right for two, and as she leaned over to pop the corn the cosy light of the fire played on her face and showed just where her dimples were.

She shook the popper with a vigorous arm, he moved over to give her more elbow room.

"It doesn't pop," she pouted.

They watched the corn carefully, both leaning forward, with their heads very close together.

"You hold it," she said, but as he took the handle she cried, "Wait!"

and seized the popper again, unconsciously placing her hand over his. "I thought I saw one pop then!" she cried.

She took the popper from him and holding it over the fire she fell to shaking it again, crying:

"Pop! Pop! Hang you, pop! Don't you see I'm waiting for you to pop! Pop! Pop! pop, I tell you! I never saw anything so slow in all my life! What's the matter with you anyway? Don't you know how to pop? Good grief! Pop! pop! Isn't there any pop in you? Pop! pop! pop, I tell you! POP!"

Sad End to Boyish Frank.

A number of April fool stunts which Harry Edwards and his younger brother, Fred, played in the attic of their home at Arlington, N. J., resulted in the death of Harry. The two brothers were going to an April fool's party, but before they left they went up to the attic of the house. Fred left his brother for a few minutes to get something downstairs. When he returned he discovered Harry hanging from a rafter. He called to him but received no answer. Around his neck was a thin leather strap such as the boys use for their school books. Fred out this and his brother dropped to the floor dead. The only explanation the police could get was that Harry probably wanted to fool his brother and make him believe that he had hanged himself. He stood up on a couch and may have slipped off accidentally.

Mr. Adeo in Europe.

Second Assistant Secretary Adeo of the state department is on his annual vacation in Europe. In company with Mr. Thacker, United States consul general at Berlin, and Mrs. Thacker, he will devote about six weeks to a bicycle tour of southern France. He expects to return to Washington about the middle of June.
